United Way of Snohomish County: CORE Work

“In Snohomish County, more than 18,000 families are trapped in poverty and almost 41,500 are struggling to get by. For a family of four, the Federal Poverty Level is $25,100 a year and while struggling families earn more than the poverty level, they still earn less than the basic cost of living in our region.

“In January of 2018, United Way of Snohomish County stepped into a collaborative approach called CORE: Creating Open Roads to Equity. This bold approach recognizes that solving a complex issue like poverty requires complex, collaborative solutions.

“CORE combines two promising national models: Collective Impact, which is intentional, measured collaboration and a 2-Generational Approach, which focuses on the well-being of the whole family.

“United Way is an active partner in five CORE Collaboratives that work intentionally to remove barriers within and between the systems related to: Early Childhood Education; Postsecondary and Employment Pathways; Economic Assets; Health & Wellbeing; [and] Social Connections.”

El Comité WA

“In 1999, The Committee organized itself as a grassroots organization in Seattle to draw attention to the plight of immigrant workers in Western Washington. [...]

“Initial organizers included members of CASA Latina, LELO (Legacy of Equality, Leadership and Organization), The Northwest Immigrant Rights Project (NWIRP), the Carpenters Union, and the Union of Tapers and Painters. [...] The group initially worked as a coalition allied with faith-based organizations, unions, and civil rights groups to give a marginalized Latino immigrant community a voice in organizing for social justice.

“The Committee formally began in April 2000 to advocate for the rights and address the needs of immigrant communities in Washington State. The majority of the members of the Committee are Latino immigrants and one of the initial emphases was to achieve comprehensive immigration reform that focused on protecting and guaranteeing labor, civil and human rights for all immigrant workers and fulfilling the dream of [social justice.] All of the founding members of The Committee are immigrants. The Committee is primarily a volunteer organization run by people who have been involved full time in other activities. Despite being a small organization with few resources, The Committee has achieved important achievements for our community.”
